

Ed Svirsky

Edward Svirsky is the Software Architect at BLT since September, 2007. He is primarily responsible for architecting, developing, and maintaining the different technologies at BLT. He is also responsible for the software end of data gathering and processing.

With a degree from CU at Boulder, Edward has a multitude of experience in various programming languages and operating systems.